The Sure Way to Test Roofing is on the Roof

Some men think that they can tell good roofing by smelling it. Figure it out yourself. How is any man's nose going to tell him how long roofing will last and how much protection from storms, snows and rains it will give.

And protection and lasting qualities are what you pay money for.

The only sure way to test roofing is on the roof.

That is where Certain-teed Roofing has been tested by time—tested for wear—tested for shelter—all over the world.

Certain-teed Roofing has never been known to wear out on the roof. It is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to weight.

Private Brands and Big Profits

Some dealers will try to sell you private brands of roofing, not because they are as good or better than Certain-teed, but because there is more dealer profit in them. Those profits come out of you.

Dealers make a fair profit on Certain-teed, but they are limited to a fair profit because so many dealers handle it and everybody knows the price.

Don't take a gambler's chance on an unknown brand. Buy for known value at a price which is fair to everyone.

Any reliable dealer can get Certain-teed for you quickly from a nearby Certain-teed warehouse or jobber. He gets it when he wants it and he gets what he wants. He can afford to sell you at a fair price.

Widely Varied Styles in Suits

THE Egyptian and the Chinese inspiration in fashions have made themselves conspicuous; the Egyptian in dinner and evening gowns, and the Chinese in suits. Both are represented in millinery displays along with head dresses that have been patterned from the headwear of other countries, far and near, so that anyone can acquire a head dress that will accentuate either the Chinese or Egyptian flavor in a costume.

The Chinese suit model was introduced early in the season, and a darling little coolie hat, with a queue of plaited ribbon trailing from its crown, was shown with it. It made a great impression and both suit and hat have been more or less faithfully copied—the hat suffering the amputation of its queue and substituting a long tassel for it. The queue was a little too eccentric, but the tassel is quite as Chinese and much more beautiful.

The success of the suits that are indebted to the Orient for their lines and decorations, is evident in the example pictured above at the left in the illustration. There is a jauntyness and trimness in the style that is fetching. The short Chinese coat is embroidered in an odd design with silk, and has a double band set on at the bottom under a tuck. The original oriental jacket would have pockets in the sleeves probably, but here the model is unfaithful to its prototype. Little slit pockets find a place in the border at each side of the front. The flaring sleeves have narrow turned-back cuffs and there is a flat collar. The skirt is plain and straight, narrow enough to give the slender lines which are needed with this jacket.

One hardly knows where to place the responsibility for the suit at the right, but its origin is on the other side of the world from China. The body of the coat is more than semi-fitting and its skirt is made to ripple with plaits. On the hip at each side there is a box plait and lest we overlook them, close-set, satin-covered buttons are placed in a row on them. Another row accents a narrow set-on panel of cloth at the back and possibly the front depends upon them for fastening.

Some Novel Shopping Bags

REALLY good shopping bags of leather have done so much varying in price since days of the war, that a good many bags of other materials are replacing them. Those of silks and of heavy and handsome ribbons, which women make for themselves, using celluloid or German silver mountings, have taken the place of the better leather bags to quite an extent. There are many more bead bags than ever before, although they are, as they always have been, expensive. The most practical of these substitutes for the regulation leather bags are those of ribbon and silks and it is a pretty fad to have a bag and street hat to match, using broad-ribbed ribbon or plain, or either figured or plain silks. The bags are usually lined with satin in a contrasting color.

It is hat and bag to match idea is responsible for the very novel bag shown at the left of the picture above. This bag is made of small iridescent green feathers, which have been most painstakingly sewed to a silk foundation. It is mounted on a frame and lined with satin, after the manner of a silk bag and has much the same appearance as a bead bag. Small all-feather hats or turbans made of brilliant little feathers inspired this novelty and it may have been a companion piece to one of them. Whoever is looking for the unusual in bags will find it in this one.

A short-lived fad for carrying dolls which was accredited to Parisiennes, may be responsible for the silk bag which simulates a doll. This little mid-Victorian lady has a wide skirt, a poke bonnet and a small cape of silk in which to face an admiring world. The skirt accommodates a mounting for the bag, which shows only on one side of it. This enticing creation in bags is suspended by a silk cord.

Possibly Clerk Had More Information to Give Out, but Elizabeth Wouldn't Wait.

Elizabeth tripped blithely into the country postoffice. "I want to know," she demanded with a tell-tale blush as she handed the clerk a pink communication addressed to her lover, "how long it will be before I get an answer to this letter."

"That depends," he answered; "if he's in jail they will let him write once a month only; if he's dead broke he'll have to wait till he can earn the price of a stamp, and I have no data upon which to base an opinion of his earning capacities. If he's ill in bed he may not care to dictate disinterested third party, and if it's small-pox they won't let him write at all; ditto, if he's dead. Then, again, if he's got a new girl—"

Mrs. Toddles Sadly Misunderstood the Note Sent to Her Hubby From the Library.

When a member desires a book that is not in a certain library, he files his application for the volume, which the librarian reserves for him on its return, notifying him that the book awaits his pleasure.

Now, it happened that one of the members applied for, but could not get at the time, a copy of a novel entitled "The Girl He Left Behind Him." In course of time a postcard arrived from the library, and as the member's wife is of a suspicious nature that postcard caused trouble, for it read: "Mr. Toddles is informed that the girl he left behind him is now in the library, and will be kept for him till next Tuesday morning."—Pearson's Weekly.
